

SUSTAINABLE BAINBRIDGE PRESENTS

The Future of Green Building and Community Design

Becoming Native to Bainbridge

An evening with

JASON F. MCLENNAN
CEO, Cascadia Green Building Council

Jason McLennan is known as an international thought leader and one of the founders of the green architecture movement. He has lectured on sustainability across the US and Canada and his book, "The Philosophy of Sustainable Design", is used as a textbook in over 30 universities throughout Europe and North America. Jason was recently named one of the top 40 under 40 most influential individuals in the design and construction field by Building Design and Construction magazine and green designer of the year by Pitch Magazine.

Green Building and Sustainable Design are the fastest growing trends in the building industry and many in the country look to the Northwest for innovative solutions and ideas. But how green are we? And where do we need to get to?

New Bainbridge Island resident, Jason F. McLennan shares his observations, personal stories and longing to establish a new home in the heart of a green community. The question remains, what does Bainbridge Island need to do to continue to be the kind of place we all love? – indeed, how can we make it stronger while restoring the ecological fabric of the island through thoughtful and informed design?
